Risk Help - example

- “I was wondering if NRMCM had guidance on parent/guardian consent form end dates. I’m at a bit of a crossroads because while I appreciate the due diligence in getting consent every year, I also feel the risk is higher with that requirement because the possibility of not receiving consent back (or not receiving it in a timely manner) is greater.”
 - NRMCM asked for current Parent/Guardian forms for review

Risk Help – NRMCC response

This is great! It's a true Permission Form and doesn't try to be a waiver of liability (which it is not).

I love how they've broken down each area where they want permission and require initials. So parents can agree to some things but don't have to agree to everything!

The ONLY thing I'd suggest is maybe an additional sentence in this section:

Your consent is required for your child's general participation in xxxxxx programs and any services that might be arranged for your child. It is not required, however, to agree to all of the items on this form. For example, you may grant permission for your child to participate but decide that you do not want your child to participate in interviews or be photographed. If you have concerns or questions about any of the items on this form, please let us know!

Tips, Knowledge and Tools for Nonprofit Organizations

THE BUSINESS CONTINUITY PLANNING ISSUE

Business Continuity Planning: Taking it from the Backburner to Front and Center

by Brittany Claire Thomey

Certain aspects of the risk management discipline are more compelling than others. It's easy to see how Enterprise Risk Management harnesses the power of your organization's strategic initiatives and bolsters the opportunity for your mission to grow and succeed. Having candid conversations about daily risks can become a simple standard practice that helps keep preventable risks in check. And annual reviews of insurance policies are necessary and routine to protect the mission from liabilities.

However, business continuity planning (BCP) often feels like a burden and is an uncomfortable, time-consuming topic to discuss thoroughly. Therefore, it rarely receives the attention that it deserves. Instead of focusing on the negative implications that disruptions cause to your organization and your mission—which often leaves BCP stuck on the backburner—realize how having a clear plan to deal with business interruptions empowers and protects the vital work that your organization does to serve your community and constituents.

Why important?

The first step in moving your organization's business continuity plan to the front and
